

In the deep ocean it may be dark, but some animals have the ability to make their own light! This female deep sea angler fish uses the light on her body to help her hunt. Color the angler fish however you like and then with adult help, use scissors to cut her out. Use a hole punch to make holes above the X marks along the top of her body and anywhere else you'd like to let light through. To illuminate your anglerfish, tape her around a lamp shade and turn your room into a deep sea habitat!
